

ROY D. MERRITT FOR U. S. PRESIDENT
CAMPAIGN SPEECH # 12

- One of my proposals is to establish Citizenship Tribunals and Terror Squads in every county in the U. S. A. to evaluate the citizenship and crime/terrorism records of all new citizens who have entered the country since 1990.
- We may very well consider citizens of all ethnicities if we need to, or if a ruling is made that we can concentrate on new citizens from Mexico and the southern American countries, then we will do that.
- These newer citizens will be asked to testify on their behalf and answer a series of questions concerning their original granting of citizenship in the U. S. A. and whether they had good intentions when they originally obtained citizenship, and whether they have been able to succeed, or fail, as newer citizens to the U. S. A.
- A tribunal of perhaps 9 long-time residents and citizens of the U. S. A. prior to 1990 should be sufficient to evaluate and reach a decision concerning the citizenship status of these individuals, and whether they are to maintain their citizenship in the U. S. A. or not.
- The list of questions asked to these individuals will include such queries as the following:
 - (01) Did you originally enter the U. S. A. legally?
 - (02) Did you obtain your citizenship under false pretenses?
